

Dear members of the Committee on Public Safety and Security:

I strongly SUPPORT ACT EXCLUDING CERTAIN TARGET SHOOTING PISTOLS FROM PROVISIONS ON ASSAULT WEAPONS.

Target pistols should not be classified as assault weapons. Target pistols are firearms specifically designed for precision shooting in sports competitions, such as Olympic shooting events. They are generally low-powered and are not designed to be used for offensive or defensive purposes.

They typically have a single-shot capacity, a long and heavy barrel, and a stable grip that promotes steadiness when firing. While they may share some design features with firearms classified as assault weapons, such as a semi-automatic action, they are not generally considered to have the characteristics of an assault weapon.

In summary, target pistols should not be classified as assault weapons, as they are designed for a completely different purpose and do not have the same capabilities or characteristics as assault weapons.

Respectfully,

Grzegorz Wrobel
